FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The respondent (CARES # [REDACTED]) is a resident of [REDACTED], Indiana who received FS benefits as a Wisconsin resident from August 19, 2020 through September 30, 2022.
2. The respondent's Wisconsin FS benefits case was closed in June of 2020 due to the respondent's failure to respond to a residency verification request issued after the petitioner noted that all of the respondent's EBT usage was in Indiana.
3. The respondent reapplied for FS benefits in Wisconsin on August 19, 2020, reporting that the family was residing in Wisconsin and was not getting FS from any other state. Exhibit 1.
4. Respondent received FS benefits from the State of Indiana from at least August of 2020, through April of 2022. Exhibit 14.
5. The respondent completed an application for FS in Indiana in November of 2020, reporting that she lived in that state. Exhibit 17.
6. The respondent completed a Medical Assistance renewal in Indiana on April 29, 2021, reporting that she resides in Indiana. Exhibit 18.
7. The respondent gave birth to two children in 2020 and 2021 in Indiana, and noted their Indiana residency on their respective birth certificates. Exhibits 19 and 20.
8. On January 19, 2023, the petitioner prepared an Administrative Disqualification Hearing Notice alleging that the respondent misrepresented her state of residence in order to receive duplicate FS benefits.
9. The respondent failed to appear for the scheduled January 11, 2023 Intentional Program Violation (IPV) hearing and did not provide any good cause for said failure to appear.

DISCUSSION

An intentional program violation of the FoodShare program occurs when a recipient intentionally does the following:

1. makes a false or misleading statement, or misrepresents, conceals or withholds facts;
or
2. commits any act that constitutes a violation of the Food Stamp Act, the Food Stamp Program Regulations, or any Wisconsin statute for the purpose of using, presenting, transferring, acquiring, receiving, possessing or trafficking of FoodShare benefits or QUEST cards.

FoodShare Wisconsin Handbook, § 3.14.1; see also 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(c) and Wis. Stat. §§ 946.92(2).

An intentional program violation can be proven by a court order, a diversion agreement entered into with the local district attorney, a waiver of a right to a hearing, or an administrative disqualification hearing, FoodShare Wisconsin Handbook, § 3.14.1. The petitioner can disqualify only the individual found to have committed the intentional violation; it cannot disqualify the entire household. Those disqualified on grounds involving the improper transfer of FS benefits are ineligible to participate in the FoodShare program for one year for the first violation, two years for the second violation, and permanently for the third violation. Although other family members cannot be disqualified, their monthly allotments will be reduced unless they agree to make restitution within 30 days of the date that the FS program mails a written demand letter. 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(b).

7 C.F.R. §273.16(e)(4) provides that the hearing shall proceed if the respondent cannot be located or fails to appear without good cause. The respondent did not appear or claim a good cause reason for not attending the hearing. Therefore, I must determine whether the respondent committed an IPV based solely on the evidence that the petitioner presented at hearing.

In order for the petitioner to establish that an FS recipient has committed an IPV, it has the burden to prove two separate elements by clear and convincing evidence. The recipient must have: 1) committed; and 2) intended to commit a program violation per 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(e)(6). In Kuehn v. Kuehn, 11 Wis.2d 15 (1959), the court held that:

Defined in terms of quantity of proof, reasonable certitude or reasonable certainty in ordinary civil cases may be attained by or be based on a mere or fair preponderance of the evidence. Such certainty need not necessarily exclude the probability that the contrary conclusion may be true. In fraud cases it has been stated the preponderance of the evidence should be clear and satisfactory to indicate or sustain a greater degree of certitude. Such degree of certitude has also been defined as being produced by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence. Such evidence, however, need not eliminate a reasonable doubt that the alternative or opposite conclusion may be true. ...

Kuehn, 11 Wis.2d at 26.

Wisconsin Jury Instruction – Civil 205 is also instructive. It provides:

Clear, satisfactory and convincing evidence is evidence which when weighed against that opposed to it clearly has more convincing power. It is evidence which satisfies and convinces you that “yes” should be the answer because of its greater weight and clear convincing power. “Reasonable certainty” means that you are persuaded based upon a rational consideration of the evidence. Absolute certainty is not required, but a guess is not enough to meet the burden of proof. This burden of proof is known as the “middle burden.” The evidence required to meet this burden of proof must be more convincing than merely the greater weight of the credible evidence but may be less than beyond a reasonable doubt.

Further, the McCormick treatise states that “it has been persuasively suggested that [the clear and convincing evidence standard of proof] could be more simply and intelligibly translated to the jury if they were instructed that they must be persuaded that the truth of the contention is highly probable.” 2 McCormick on Evidence § 340 (John W. Strong gen. ed., 4th ed. 1992).

Thus, in order to find that an IPV was committed, the trier of fact must derive from the evidence a firm conviction as to the existence of each of the two elements even though there may be a reasonable doubt as to their existence.

In order to prove the second element, i.e., intention, there must be clear and convincing evidence that the FS recipient intended to commit the IPV. The question of intent is generally one to be determined by the trier of fact. State v. Lossman, 118 Wis.2d 526 (1984). There is a general rule that a person is presumed to know and intend the probable and natural consequences of his or her own voluntary words or acts. See, John F. Jelke Co. v. Beck, 208 Wis. 650 (1932); 31A C.J.S. Evidence §131. Intention is a subjective state of mind to be determined upon all the facts. Lecus v. American Mut. Ins. Co. of Boston, 81 Wis.2d 183 (1977). Thus, there must be clear and convincing evidence that the FS recipient knew that the act or omission was a violation of the FS Program but committed the violation anyway.

Wisconsin law specifically identifies FS violations:

Wis. Stat. §946.92 (emphasis added).

In this case, respondent did not appear at the hearing. If the person suspected of the IPV (or his or her representative) cannot be located or fails to appear without good cause the hearing must be conducted without the IPV suspect being represented. 7 C.F.R. 273.16(e)(4).

If the household member or its representative cannot be located or fails to appear at a hearing initiated by the State agency without good cause, the hearing shall be conducted without the household member being represented. Even though the household member is not represented, the hearing official is required to carefully consider the evidence and determine if intentional Program violation was committed based on clear and convincing evidence. If the household member is found to have committed an intentional Program violation but a hearing official later determines that the household member or representative had good cause for not appearing, the previous decision shall no longer remain valid and the State agency shall conduct a new hearing. The hearing official who originally ruled on the case may conduct the new hearing. In instances where good cause for failure to appear is based upon a showing of nonreceipt of the hearing notice . . . , the household member has 30 days after the date of the written notice of the hearing decision to claim good cause for failure to appear. In all other instances, the household member has 10 days from the date of the scheduled hearing to present reasons indicating a good cause for failure to appear. A hearing official must enter the good cause decision into the record.

7 C.F.R. § 273.16(e)(4) (2011).

The respondent did not present a good cause reason for failing to appear at the hearing. Therefore, the determination of whether respondent committed an FS IPV is based solely on what the petitioner presented at the hearing.

The agency seeks to disqualify respondent from participation in the FS program for a period of ten years and contends that she provided false information on both her Wisconsin FS and Indiana SNAP applications / renewals for the purpose of receiving duplicate benefits from two states. The agency offered copies of applications / renewals completed by respondent in both states, which show that she incorrectly reported to the State of Wisconsin that she was not receiving SNAP benefits elsewhere and incorrectly reported to the State of Indiana that she was not receiving SNAP elsewhere. Moreover, she reported to Indiana that she was living in Indiana during a time period when she had reported to Wisconsin that she was residing in Wisconsin.

In addition to producing evidence that the respondent provided inaccurate information to Indiana and to Wisconsin on multiple occasions, the agency produced benefit issuance reports that show that the respondent received benefits from both states due to those incorrect residency assertions and transaction history reports that show that she used the benefits issued to her by both states. The agency also demonstrated that Respondent was advised of FS program rules and the penalties for non-compliance with those rules. Respondent did not appear at the hearing to rebut or explain any of the agency's evidence. The agency has thus met its burden to demonstrate with clear and convincing evidence that Respondent misrepresented information regarding her residency for the purpose of receiving duplicate benefits and that constituted an intentional program violation. The agency therefore correctly seeks to disqualify Respondent from the FS program for ten years pursuant to 7 C.F.R. §273.16(b)(5).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. Respondent intentionally misrepresented information regarding her residency for the purpose of receiving duplicate benefits from Wisconsin and Indiana, and did, in fact, receive duplicate benefits from Wisconsin and Indiana
2. The agency properly seeks to disqualify Respondent from the FoodShare program for a period of ten years pursuant to 7 C.F.R. §273.16(b)(5).

NOW, THEREFORE, it is ORDERED

That the petitioner's determination is sustained, and that the petitioner may make a finding that the respondent committed a first IPV of the FoodShare program and disqualify the respondent from the program for ten years, effective the first month following the date of receipt of this decision.
